Digital Operations & AI Automation

I’d like to join your team in a paid role looking after the website, customer follow-up, and simple AI tools that save time. I’m new to the electrical business, so I’d start by learning how you already work. You’d approve anything a customer sees.

What I’d take care of

- Website changes you’ve approved, checked once they’re live.
- Keeping customer follow-ups current, so nothing slips.
- Looking after the AI tools and catching their mistakes.
- A short weekly update: what’s done, what’s waiting on you, and what’s next.

What stays with you and your team

Prices, scheduling, technical calls, and emergencies. Approving anything a customer will see. Which customer information the AI tools may see.

Where I’d start

Two small website fixes (an emergency phone line on the contact form, and a city or ZIP box) plus one simple follow-up habit in the software you already use. We’d agree hours, pay, access, and a review date first.

What exists today: an example dashboard for incoming messages, with the AI’s sorting tested on 40 made-up website messages, plus website ideas and an office kit. Nothing connects to your systems or sends anything yet. That would come later, only if you want it and after testing.

Review the results together

The first 90 days

Weeks 1–2: listen

Learn how a customer request moves through your office and which software you already use. Bring back a short list of suggestions for you to choose from.

By day 30: first results

One website fix you approved, live and checked. One simple follow-up habit in the system you already use, so no customer is forgotten.

By day 60: one AI task

Try the AI idea you picked on real work, with a person checking everything it produces. Keep track of the time it takes, including the checking.

Day 90: decide together

Keep it, change it, or stop it, based on what actually happened. Agree the ongoing role, hours, and pay.

AI tool budget

Between $120 and $400 a month, depending on the plans you choose, and never more than $400 including tax. Hours and pay are separate. No automatic top-ups; any change needs your written OK.

Before using real customer messages, we'd agree what information the tools may see, ideally on a company plan. Every example in the proposal is made up.

What I'm asking for

A paid starting role. It begins with the website and following up on customer messages, and takes on more AI help only where testing shows it works. We'd agree hours and pay together, with check-ins at 30, 60, and 90 days. Text or call Adam: 805-624-0580.
